BOOKS

ENCLOSURE
Palestinian Landscapes in a Historical Mirror
University of California Press (2017).
Enclosure is a comparative historical geography of land conflict and dispossession across three case studies: the early modern English enclosures; the Anglo-American colonial frontier; and contemporary Palestine. The central argument in the book is that the process of land loss in contemporary Palestine is part of a longstanding pattern of conflict over rights to land between groups with territorial ambitions, and less powerful groups already anchored to the landscape. TERRITORIES OF PROFIT
Communications, Capitalist Development and the Innovative Enterprises of G.F. Swift and Dell Computer. Stanford University Press (2004).
Territories of Profit is a comparative historical geography of corporate power and patterns of economic development during two different communications revolutions: the railroad/telegraph revolution of the 19th century, and the Internet revolution of the late 20th century. The book argues that the Internet is part of an ongoing communications revolution that began with the railroad and telegraph and is still underway.

IMPRISONED
Voices and Images from Confinement Landscapes in Palestine [In progress]
In discussion with University of California Press; projected publication 2025.
Imprisoned examines the phenomenon of confinement on the landscapes of twelve different locales in Palestine as seen through the experience of an individual in each of the twelve places. The book complements these Palestinian voices with photographic images of the confinement phenomenon in each locale taken by the author.
